Frequently asked Questions

➤ How much can I make by renting my unit?

The owners on Go West's rental program earn on average $12,000 in revenue per season.

➤ What is deducted from the revenue earned by the unit?

Go West deducts the cost of maintenance for the unit that is incurred during the rental season from the revenue earned on the unit. This includes: oil changes, yearly maintenance inspections and tire rotation.

➤ How quickly will I receive the income from a rental?

Go West distributes a detailed statement itemizing all rental and mileage income and maintenance costs within 2 weeks of rental return. This means there are no hidden costs; you can see everything that goes on with your unit.

Frequently Asked Questions:

➤ How do we ensure your RV will not be damaged?

Go West's rental contract stipulates that the renter is responsible for all damage, other than normal wear and tear. Each renter receives detailed instructions on the operation of the vehicle in their native language from our multilingual staff. Further, each renter receives an operation manual in their native language to ensure that they have access to the instructions at all times throughout the rental. Prior to each rental we inspect each unit, collect a damage deposit and a blank credit card authorization so that should any damages occur, they can be charged to the renter.

➤ How is the unit insured?

Go West has negotiated a comprehensive fleet policy protecting owners with $5 million dollar of liability coverage as well as comprehensive coverage. If there is ever a claim, the renter is responsible for the deductible and it will not affect the owner's personal insurance premiums.

➤ What if my unit doesn't rent?

During the summer months, Go West currently experiences a demand that is far greater than our ability to provide units and as a result are able to rent units with minimal downtime.

➤ Where would my unit be kept when not out on rental?

Go West has fully enclosed and secured compounds that are regularly patrolled and monitored by security cameras. Further, as an option only available to members of Go West Owner Program, we can arrange storage for a nominal amount over the winter months.
